Sounds of Industry.

BY MES. P. F. GAGE. The clanging of the hammer, The whirring of the plane, The crashing of the busy saw,

The creaking of the grane; The ringing of the anvil, The grating of the dritt, The cintt'ring of the turning lathe,

The whicking of the mill ; The clipping of the tailor's shears, The driving of the awl :

These sounds of active industry. I love-I love them all. For they tell my listening spirit

Of the earnestness of life, How much of all its pleasures Cometh of toll and strife : Not the toil or strife which fainteth And murmureth by the way : Not the toil or strife whick greaneth Beneath the tyrant's sway :

But the toil that ever springeth From a free and willing heart,--The strife that ever bringeth To the toiler, nobler part. O, there's joy and good in labour, If we labour but aright,

> Giving vigour to the day-time And sweeter sleep at night; A good that bringeth pleasure E'en to the toiling hours, For duty cheers the spirit, As the dew revives the flowers;

Giving strength and hope in sorrow, Driving clouds and storms away, Making sunshine for the morrow From the darkness of to-day. Say it not that our good Father

Bade us labour as a doom ; No, it is His richest mercy, Meant to sweeten life's dull gloom. Let us cheerly then be doing Whate'er we find to do, With an exenest, willing spirit, And a strong hand free and true.

VARIETY.

An Indianapolis editor says of a retiring cotemporary : " His blunders never annoyed him, and he was cheerful and chirrupy under a mountain To SAY THE LEAST .- It doesn't look well, to say the least, for a Kansas church member to have to draw out his revolver in order to get at his two cents for the contribution box. NEVER .- "Yes, Job suffered some," said an

Illinois deacon, " but he never knew what it was to have his team run away and kill his wife right in the busy season when bired girls want three dollars per week. LOOKS DIFFERENT .- A professional man not far from State street, Boston, returning to his office one day, after a substantial lunch, said complacently to his assistant, " Mr. Peetkin, the world looks different to a man when he has three inches of rum in him." "Yes," replied the junior, without a moment's hesitation, "and he looks different to the world."

Errors will creep into the best regulated newspaper, but the London Times on Saturday, May 16th, in its report of the Parliamentary proceedings of the preceding evening, fairly outdid itself. The House being in Committee of Supply, the Chairman was ordered to "report progress. The Printing House Square journal gave it that the Chairman was directed " to repeat prayers."

Long Enough.-A clergyman in one of the rural towns of Maine, who had preached almost two hours, the other Sunday, was interrupted by one of his bearers, who remarked, in a very loud voice: "There! there! you have preached long enough. If ver reach any longer we shall for-get the soject of the text!" The meeting closed immediately after.

GREAT NEWS .- It is related of Senator Sumner that during the war and shortly after a terrible disaster that thrilled the land, a gentleman met Mr. Sumner walking slowly along the streets of Boston. He rushed hurriedly and in great excitement to the Senator. "Mr. Sumner" he cried " have you any news for us?" "Yes, sir," responded the invalid in his deep voice. "Yes, sir; I am much better." Spicy.-Epitaph on a reporter, by a lawyer: Then A. J.'s dead,

His jacet, here he lies!

Who knew reporter
E'er do otherwise!

Epigram on the lawyer: A legal friend proposes when I'm dead, To write hie jucet o'er my lifeless head. This will not suit him when his form is chill, How can be lie when once his tongue is still? Twould have a fitter meaning, if the line, Were straightway painted on his office sign.

A writer in the St. Paul Press tells a new story of Horace Greeley. Horace wrote a note to a brother editor in New York, whose writing was equally as illegible with his own. The recipient of the note not being able to read it sent it back by the same messenger to Mr. Greeley for elucida-tion. Supposing it to be the answer to his own note, Mr. Greeley looked over it, and likewise was unable to read it, and said to the boy: " Go. take it back. What does the fool mean?" " Yes, sir," said the boy, "that it just what he says."

An Englishman holding forth in the evening in a Scotch hotel to some friends and some strangers in the house on the subject of cremation of bodies, in place of the present mode of burial, wound up by declaring that he had about made up his mind to leave directions with his executors and friends that, when he died, his body should be cremated. A canny old Scotchman, who did not relish the innovation, "set the table on a roar" by remarking. "Ye seem in a great hurry about that business, ma freen. A' that may possibly be or-dained to be done, without ony bother to your friends and executors, at the Lord's guid time and pleasure.

DYING EXPRESSIONS .- The Atlanta Constitution, speaking of Millard Fillmore, says: "The idea of the dying statesman dwelling on victuals and eulogizing the palatability of food is strangely unromantic. Mr. Rose, in his history of William Pitt, declared that the remarkable man exclaimed, at the supreme moment of departure, " Save my country, heaven !" The nurse, being interrogated, started most emphatically that he had "asked for a basin of gruel." No certain dependence can be placed upon the representations of partial friends as to the actual last words of the great. The tendency is always to seize upon the dying expression which is most presentable for the inspection of the critic or the multitude. The rest is silence. The Nashville Banner says: "A Rocktown maiden has invented a new method of dismissing tiresome beaux. When they call in the evening, and remain until 10 o'clock, she rises quickly. and, walking over to the clock, which is ticking on the mantel, winds it up, exclaiming (unconsciously, of course), . Dear me, how late it is; and the nights are so short!' If they don't take the hint-she suddenly becomes very warm, and fans herself violently. Her fan is a model in every respect. It has the words, 'Young man, does your mother know you're out?' painted on one side in small letters, while the other side is blank. She adroitly turns the side with the inscription toward the young man, who, glancing at it, suddenly remembers that he must be at home by 10:30 o'clock, certain. She, of course, politely inquires why his haste? and he, mur-muring an excuse, bids her good night, and flies from her presence forever. Her real lover is never permitted to see that side of the fan." IMPORTER AND COMMISSION MER-
